

Seeking women to help in developing an outcome measure for patients and clinicians to better manage ovarian cancer

We are seeking your help in developing a questionnaire for patients with ovarian cancer. We invite you to participate in an online interview using Skype or phone. This interview will help us to improve and approve the wording of the statements related to your illness. This is an essential step to making sure that the questionnaire includes your voice about what is relevant and important to you in terms of your condition. We hope you will consider talking to a researcher about your thoughts regarding the newly-developed questionnaire. The interview will be conducted over Skype, Zoom, Facetime, the phone or similar at a time to suit you – and so we can talk to you in your own home. If you do decide to join the study, the researcher will contact you to determine a suitable date and time.

We are seeking both women who are having treatment at the moment or who have experienced ovarian cancer in the past. If you are able to join us in the discussion, please could you either e-mail Sharolin Boban 32009365@my.nd.edu.au or Professor Caroline Bulsara (University of Notre Dame Australia) caroline.bulsara@nd.edu.au for further information or if you have any queries about the project and planned interview.